

Drago Star (Toy Soldier Book 1)

Captain Gideon is a candidate at the Drago Star Academy and well on his way to fulfilling his lifelong dream--to be a Star Commander and fight the alien insurgency on Earth. However, before he can complete his training, he is captured by an unknown entity who sells him to a sadistic alien master. He strives to follow his military training, but nothing can prepare him for the abuse he endures at the hands of his deviant captors. Despite his disorientation, Gideon realizes things are not as they seem. Though his captors appear to be slavers, they have the resources of a government or rebel entity. To complicate matters, the air smells different, the people look strange, and the light of the sun is all wrong. Gideon's only hope is escape, but if they've taken him from his home planet, is escape even possible?

Holding his cigar with his teeth, Drago turned Gideon's head to the side and plucked his ear drive from its port. You're not going to need that any longer. After tucking the drive in his breast pocket, Drago released Gideon's hair, walked to a table behind him, and put his cigar out. I'm going to give you a chance to defend yourself, but I'm sorry to say, I don't like playing fair. Drago turned back toward Gideon, unbuttoning his suit jacket as he spoke. You see, I care nothing for love and courting. I'm a predator, and what I want is pure and carnal. Drago draped his jacket over the back of the couch next to the table and unbuttoned his white dress shirt revealing a large tattoo of a dragon, which curled around his chest and extended to his back. When I play, I play hard, but I like my victims to be willing. I need you to be desperate for what I have to give you. Drago watched Gideon closely as he removed the rest of his clothing. Once completely naked, Drago released his hair, letting long blond locks loose over his strong shoulders, silky strands falling down to his waist. No longer registering his words, Gideon gaped at the sleek, masculine vision before him. Never had he seen a man as beautiful as Drago. Then his breath left him. The shiny green and blue dragon tattoo began to move across Drago's skin, first slinking around his back, and then growing until the scales extended to every part of his body, covering every inch of his skin except for his face and neck. Disengage shackles, Drago ordered. In the next moment, the metal clamps holding Gideon's ankles clicked open, freed his feet, and disappeared back into the floor. I hope you've been paying attention, Gideon, Drago said, taking a step toward him. Gideon looked up, shocked to hear Drago use his name. Then the dragon tattoo covering his body began to shine, and it looked like the light was hitting actual scales. Gideon backed away as large wings grew out of Drago's shoulders and a long tail snaked around one leg. The scales on Drago's body looked like hard armor, and his face was all that remained human. Gideon's eyes grew wide as he retreated, and his back hit the wall. There he stood plastered, his heart beating rapidly. What are you? Drago laughed. I'm the native species of your planet.
