Not illustrated. 1871 Excerpt: ...entitled, TheTurkeand Gawaine. This romance occurs in the recently edited Percy MS. Many important romances altogether omitted and probably unseen by Warton and his editors, might be mentioned here, such as Blonde of Oxford and Jchan of Dammartin, edited for the Camden Society, 1858; Sir Generides, recently edited for the Roxburghe Club by Mr. Furnivall (a ballad-poem on the fame subject is in a MS. in the library of Trinity College, Cambridge; and of the longer narrative fragments printed with the types of W. de Worde are extant); The Romans of Partenay or Melufine, Early English Text Society, 1866; and Torrent of Portugal, printed from the Chetham MS. 1842, 8vo. Torrent of Portugal, which, from a small fragment with his types remaining, seems to have been printed by Pynson in the early part of the sixteenth century, is a very dull and puerile performance. It appears to be in heroic fiction what Jack the Giant Killer is in the romance of the nursery. How far Jack may have owed his existence to his grander and more imposing prototype, it is not easy to say. We see in Torrent of Portugal a curiously vague use of geographical terms connected with America; possibly the story, in its present shape, was not composed long before it came from Pynsons press. 192 Proofs of the Affetion they gave rise, amusing images of ancient customs and institutions not elsewhere to be found, or at least not otherwise so strikingly delineated: and they preserve, pure and unmixed, those fables of chivalry which formed the taste, and awakened the imagination, of our elder English elastics. The antiquaries of former times overlooked or rejected these valuable remains, which they despised as false and frivolous, and employed their industry in reviving obscure fragments of uninstruct...
