

The Red Thumb Mark

The Red Thumb Mark In Dr John Evelyn Thorndykes first case the forensic evidence specialist immerses himself in the mystery of missing jewels stolen from the vault of Mr John Hornby and his firm of jewellers. Only four people have keys to the vault, and one of the men is arrested. Thorndyke and his assistant Dr Jervis are not convinced the man is guilty and set out to prove his innocence. Their doubts involve a tantalising clue: a bloodied red thumb print left in the vault.
