

Dangerous Territory

Chantal Brewer and her ex-partner Nathan Copeland find themselves in the Oxley Magistrates Court, and then the Attenborough Family Law Court, as they sort out their legal issues with their eight year old twins. Chantals mother, Joy, is an investor in a new retirement village development with a real estate agency, operated by the Parnham family in Reverton. Nathans mother and father are owners of a rival real estate agency in the same town. Tensions have always simmered between the two families since a dispute generations ago over some of the land now intended for use in the retirement village project. While Chantal and Nathan are slugging it out in court, Nathans grandfather, Frank, takes his great grandson, Jason, out to explore some of the disputed land, using old maps from the local museum. What they discover out there now drags Joy and Chantal into the standoff between the two warring families.

Luke Naismith has set up an old tramcar to live in with his partner Skye on his rural property. When he tries to list it for sale with both the Copeland and the Parnham real estate agencies, he finds himself drawn into the conflict between the two agencies.
